

Angela Falconer

Angela Falconer is a fellow in Climate Policy Initiative's Venice office. At CPI, she has tracked flows of international public climate finance for several editions of the Global Landscape of Climate Finance reports. She managed the production of CPI's Landscape of Public Climate Finance in Indonesia, and advised the Government of Indonesia on national climate fund design.

Angela also focuses on analysing the mobilisation of climate finance, and the entry points and incentives for public and private finance, particularly related to land use.

Prior to joining CPI, Angela worked for AEA Technology as a climate change and energy policy consultant, primarily on behalf of the European government.

Angela holds an MSc in Environmental Change and Management from the University of Oxford, an MA in Geography from the University of Glasgow and is a PhD candidate in Ca' Foscari University of Venice's PhD program on the "Science and Management of Climate Change."
