NATALIE UNTERSTELL

---

Natalie Unterstell is a climate change policy and negotiations expert from Brazil, currently serving as a member of the Climate Finance for Latin America and the Caribbean Group (GFLAC). As director of sustainable development at the Presidency of Brazil, Natalie led the ambitious Brazil 2040 climate adaptation program from 2013 to 2015, which aimed to climate-proof critical sectors of the country's economy. She participated in formulating the first national adaptation plan as well as in negotiations of loss and damage at the UNFCCC level. Prior to that, she was the head of the climate and forests unit at the Brazilian Ministry of the Environment and lead-negotiator for her country on REDD+ issues at UNFCCC. She holds a Master in Public Administration from Harvard John F. Kennedy School of Government and a bachelor in Business Administration from Fundacao Getulio Vargas.
