
RUPALEE RUCHISMITA

Rupalee is a social finance expert and Founder, Director of Resilience Design Labs a social design think tank operating in multiple countries. Her work has been focused on designing finance, insurance and safety net solutions for impoverished communities.

She has launched South Asia's first climate insurance product and has collaborated on designing and evaluating the world's largest social health insurance scheme; RSBY, reaching 82 million individuals.

She has presented in over 22 countries; twice at the UN Head Quarters; at Stanford University and the Wharton School among others.

This year she has been a guest speaker for the MCII hosted at UNFCC at Berlin, Colombian Insurance Regulator- FASECOLDA on Disruptive Technology in mass insurance (Bogota) and for the Ecuadorian social health financing industry (Quito).

She has a diverse background in social design and public policy in building household social safety nets. More about her here: <https://www.linkedin.com/in/rupaleeruchismita>

