Welcoming the compilation and synthesis of second biennial reports from Annex I Parties prepared by the secretariat,

1. Notes that Parties included in Annex I to the Convention (Annex I Parties) significantly advanced the reporting in their second biennial reports compared with that in their first biennial reports;

2. Also notes Parties are approaching their targeted emission reduction levels by implementing policies and measures across all sectors and accounting for units from market-based mechanisms and land use, land-use change and forestry, however, further efforts are required to attain the targeted emission levels by 2020;

3. Further notes that for some Parties the use of units from land use, land-use change and forestry and market-based mechanisms will make a sizable contribution towards achieving their targets;

4. Notes that over the period 1990–2014 the total aggregate greenhouse gas emissions excluding emissions and removals from land use, land-use change and forestry for all Annex I Parties...
I Parties decreased by 11.3 per cent and their total greenhouse gas emissions and removals including land use, land-use change and forestry decreased by 15.7 per cent;

5. Also notes that for Annex I Parties with economies in transition, greenhouse gas emissions excluding and including land use, land-use change and forestry decreased by 37.2 per cent and 47.0 per cent, respectively;

6. Further notes that Annex I Parties that do not have economies in transition, greenhouse gas emissions excluding and including land use, land-use change and forestry increased by 1.2 per cent and 0.5 per cent, respectively;

7. Notes that the total aggregate greenhouse gas emissions without land use, land-use change and forestry for Annex I Parties are projected to decrease by 13.7 per cent in the period 1990–2020 and 14.1 per cent in the period 1990–2030, taking into account the effect of implemented and adopted policies and measures;

8. Also notes that for Annex I Parties with economies in transition, a significant drop in greenhouse gas emissions is projected for the period 1990–2020 (by 41.4 per cent) as well as for the period 1990–2030 (by 37.3 per cent);

9. Further notes that for Annex I Parties that do not have economies in transition, a slight decrease in emissions is projected for the period 1990–2020 (by 0.4 per cent) as well as for the period 1990–2030 (by 2.9 per cent);

10. Welcomes the fact that Parties included in Annex II to the Convention have increased the amount of qualitative information provided since their first biennial reports in reporting on financial support, particularly with regard to methodological issues and private finance;

11. Also welcomes that some Annex I Parties not included in Annex II to the Convention also provided information on climate finance in their second biennial reports on a voluntary basis;

12. Notes that with regard to the type of support, the majority of funding was provided for mitigation, showing a clear increase within the reporting period, followed by adaptation and cross-cutting, the funding for which slightly decreased within the reporting period;

13. Requests the secretariat to prepare a compilation and synthesis report on the information reported by Parties included in Annex I to the Convention in their seventh national communications, for consideration by the Conference of the Parties at its twenty-fourth session (November 2018), in accordance with Article 7, paragraph 2(g), of the Convention, in conjunction with the compilation and synthesis of third biennial reports to be prepared by the secretariat in accordance with decision 2/CP.17;
