DESCRIPTION

This webinar examined what we have learned from past capacity building initiatives and how we can build on shared experiences to collaborate effectively with vulnerable developing countries in the face of growing inequalities.

COVID-19 has deepened the inequalities faced by communities that are on the frontline of any global crisis, including the climate emergency.

As we move forward, what can we learn from past capacity building initiatives that support the LDCs to address climate change? This online event brought together stakeholders from four climate capacity building initiatives to reflect on experiences and what that means in a post-COVID world.
