DESCRIPTION

Gender equality, women's empowerment, and biodiversity conservation are central issues to the international conservation and sustainable development agendas.

By integrating gender equality and women's empowerment approaches into global biodiversity policy frameworks, this module explores the positive impacts of engaging women and women's groups as agents of change in the development and implementation of NBSAPs.

This module will also provide you with the tools to facilitate women's empowerment and leadership during NBSAP implementation using case studies of small-scale conservation and sustainable development projects.
