Global climate action (GCA)

DESCRIPTION

The goal of this publication and associated resources is to give the international community access to new climate information, tools, and guidance to help them make decisions about how to deal with climate change, especially for adaptation and resilience projects.

Providing these products can help countries find and choose the most effective climate actions to deal with the many problems caused by climate change.

In this way, guidance can help countries make decisions and get funds to deal with climate change.
