Anne Hidalgo

Mayor of Paris and C40 Chair

The first woman to be elected Mayor of Paris, Anne Hidalgo took office in April 2014. Her agenda is focused on social inclusion, sustainable development, solidarity, citizen participation and innovation, essential topics in building the Paris of tomorrow.

Born in Spain, she is married and mother of three children.

After co-hosting the Climate Summit for Local Leaders in December 2015 with Michael Bloomberg, the UN Secretary- General's Special Envoy for Cities and Climate Change, she was elected as the new Chair of C40 Cities, the leading network of the 91 most important cities in the world committed to addressing climate change.
