IN FOCUS

FAST-START FINANCING FOR CLIMATE CHANGE ACTION

One of the key achievements of the Copenhagen Climate Change Conference in December 2009 was a pledge by rich countries to provide USD 30 billion by 2012 – known as ‘fast-start funding’ – to help poor nations reduce carbon emissions and adapt to climate impacts, with the promise to increase to USD 100 billion per year by 2020. In Focus addresses some questions surrounding this fast-start funding. More...

SCALING UP INSTITUTIONAL INVESTMENT IN CLIMATE SOLUTIONS

By Aled Jones, Deputy Director, University of Cambridge Programme for Sustainability Leadership & Facilitator, HRH Prince of Wales's P8 Group

As part of the global response to climate change, a large increase in investments into climate solutions is required. Institutional investors are financial organizations that control the scale of finance necessary to transition the global economy. Moreover, they are the organizations which are most likely to have the long-term investment horizons needed in these investments. However, clear policy direction is essential to stimulate their engagement. More...
