ADVISORY NOTE TO ALL UN VISITORS AND CONFERENCE/MEETING PARTICIPANTS EBOLA VIRUS DISEASE PROTOCOL

Ebola virus disease (EVD) is a rare and severe viral disease. The virus can infect both humans and non-human primates (monkeys, gorillas, etc.). When infected, people can get very sick and experience fever, intense weakness, headache, sore throat and pains, and may bleed from different parts of the body (i.e., hemorrhage). There is currently no licensed vaccine or specific treatment for EVD.

The majority of cases in humans have occurred as a result of human-to-human transmission. Infection occurs by direct contact (through broken skin or mucous membranes) with the blood, secretions, organs or other body fluids of infected people, and with surfaces and materials (e.g. bedding, clothing) contaminated with these fluids. People become contagious only after they start to show symptoms.

While EVD has a high mortality rate and there is no preventive medication or specific cure available, visitors/participants should be aware that according to the World Health Organization, the risk of introducing EVD to and transmitting it at an international meeting is generally very low. There is no evidence of airborne transmission of EVD.

The purpose of this note is to provide the following essential information so that you are aware of the symptoms of EVD and know what to do in case you get sick during your visit or meeting, so that you may protect your own health and safety and that of other visitors/participants and of UN staff.

Know the symptoms of EVD and see a health care provider immediately if you have any symptoms of the disease.

The symptoms of EVD include:

Sudden onset of fever	Intense weakness
Muscle pain	Headache
Sore throat

This is followed by:

Vomiting	Diarrhea
Rash	Impaired kidney and liver function
In some cases, both internal and external bleeding

If you are experiencing any of the above symptoms, please be sure to follow the steps below:

During working/meeting hours at UN premises:

- Immediately contact the First Aid staff present at the premises;
- In case your condition requires evaluation for possible EVD, an isolation room will be available and trained and equipped emergency medical staff with an ambulance will be called in to assist.

During non-working/meeting hours:

- If you are staying at a hotel, please do not approach the hotel reception or use public or private transport to get to a hospital or clinic;
- Please stay in your hotel room and call immediately the UN Bonn Security Control Center at 0228-815-0911, which will arrange for an ambulance with emergency medical staff to go to your hotel room and to provide the necessary medical care.

Secretary-General's Message for UN Day 2014

The United Nations is needed more than ever at this time of multiple crises. Poverty, disease, terrorism, discrimination and climate change are exacting a heavy toll. Millions of people continue to suffer deplorable exploitation through bonded labour, human trafficking, sexual slavery or unsafe conditions in factories, fields and mines. The global economy remains an uneven playing field.

The founding of the United Nations was a solemn pledge to the world's people to end such assaults on human dignity, and lead the way to a better future. There have been painful setbacks, and there is much work ahead to realize the Charter's vision. But we can take heart from our achievements.

The UN Millennium Development Goals have inspired the most successful anti-poverty campaign ever. United Nations treaties addressing inequality, torture and racism have protected people, while other agreements have safeguarded the environment. UN peacekeepers have separated hostile forces, our mediators have settled disputes and our humanitarian workers have delivered life-saving aid.

At this critical moment, let us reaffirm our commitment to empowering the marginalized and vulnerable. On United Nations Day, I call on Governments and individuals to work in common cause for the common good.

Ban Ki-moon
