and I am speaking on behalf of Climate Action Network.

2014 MUST be the year of ambition and Parties have much to do.

We need to increase pre - 2020 emission reduction targets and that is an obvious choice. The June Ministerial is a good deadline, though CAN is deeply disappointed with the backsliding of some developed countries which occurred at this session. It is important that parties build on proposals like the AOSIS proposal that can play a big role by initiating cooperative and participatory process focused on implementing renewable energy and energy efficiency solutions. Such proposals will help build broad coalitions of stakeholders who help in increasing mitigation ambition.

It is important that parties agree on a pathway to fulfilling the $100 Billion Commitment. Agreement on this will help pave the way for the 2015 agreement and build momentum for all parties to prepare their post-2020 mitigation commitments and actions which must be tabled in 2014. Here, parties should develop a short list of Convention-based equity indicators used by them in the preparation and review of proposed post-2020 commitments.

CAN urges that parties reflect on this and ensure that next time when we all meet in 2014, Parties are fully prepared to ACTUALLY increase ambition.

Thank you
