

Lavanya Rajamani is a Professor, (International Law) at the Centre for Policy Research, New Delhi.

Lavanya Rajamani was previously a University Lecturer in Environmental Law, and Fellow & Director of Studies in Law at Queens' College, Cambridge. She writes, teaches and advises on international environmental law, in particular international climate change law and policy. The body of her academic work addresses the issue of differential treatment in international environmental law, in particular in international climate change law. Her critically acclaimed monograph Differential Treatment in International Environmental Law (Oxford University Press, UK, 2006) as well as a series of articles in the prestigious peer-reviewed international journals International & Comparative Law Quarterly (2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012), International Affairs (2012), the European Journal of International Law (2012) and Theoretical Inquiries in Law (2013), engage in a forensic analysis of the climate change treaties and texts emerging from the ongoing climate change negotiations.

Rajamani is also co-editor of Promoting Compliance in the Emerging Climate Regime (CUP, 2011), Implementation of International Environmental Law (Hague Academy of International Law, 2011), and Climate Change Liability: Transnational Law and Practice (CUP, 2011). She is the Rapporteur for the International Law Association's Committee on Legal Principles Relating to Climate Change. She has worked on and followed the climate negotiations since 1997, in different capacities, including as a negotiator for the Alliance of Small Island States, and consultant to the FCCC Secretariat, the Danish Ministry of Climate Change and the Indian Ministry of Environment and Forests. Her full biographical details are available at http://www.cprindia.org/users/lavanya-rajamani