

Melissa Pinfield

Melissa Pinfield is a public policy practitioner with over fifteen years' of international experience.

She joined the UK's Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) in February 2014 as Head of International Forests and Land Use, with responsibility for DECC's forest portfolio of investments and REDD+, forests and land-use change in the international negotiations.

A dual national, she has also worked on climate change for a number of years for the Australian Government. As a diplomat in China from 2000-2004, she helped establish the Australia-China Partnership on Climate Change. In Australia's Department for Climate Change and Energy Efficiency from 2011-13 she led the Strategic Partnerships Team, with a strong focus on developing global carbon markets.

She has also worked extensively on China policy issues.