

Dr. Bernd-Markus Liss

Head of Section Climate Change and Climate Policy

Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ)

Bernd-Markus Liss leads the Section Climate Change and Climate Policy in the Division Climate Change, Environment, Infrastructure of the GIZ Department Sectoral and Global Programmes. He is also the GIZ focal point to the UNFCCC. Before his current position, he worked for GIZ in the Philippines as Cluster Coordinator Environment and Climate Change overseeing a portfolio of projects on climate policy, renewable energy, environment, biodiversity, and REDD+. He holds a Diploma and a doctoral degree in forest sciences from Munich University, where he was also active in research and lecturing for several years. Before joining GIZ in 2010, he was engaged in the consulting sector with a focus on sustainable natural resources management, biodiversity conservation, forest and climate policy. His assignments in international cooperation for the past 30 years include work with the German government, various bilateral donors, EU, FAO, UNDP and World Bank in Africa, Asia and the Caribbean.