

Rent a free bike via the nextbike app!

At COP 23 there will be two rental stations providing 600 nextbike bicycles for commuting between the Bula and Bonn Zones from 6 until 17 November. The bikes can also be used for excursions to the city of Bonn. One station is located at the secondary entrance of the Bula Zone (temporary extension) and the other one at the secondary entrance of the Bonn zone.

The bikes can be rented free of charge via the nextbike app and using a voucher code which will be made available at the rental stations and COP 23 information desks. Please choose "COP23" (default in Bonn) when registering with the app. Nextbike staff and volunteers will offer assistance at the stations between 8 am and 10 pm each day.

If technical assistance is required during a rental, a service phone number can be found in the front basket of each bicycle (technical service is available in German and English).

The bike-sharing system is made available for the transport between the conference zones. Bikes can also be kept for longer and may be taken temporarily outside of the premises. However, to allow other participants to make use of the system as well, participants are requested to return the bikes to one of the stations on the COP 23 premises.

Please note that we reserve the right to collect parked bikes that have not been in use for 24 hours, to enable us to provide continuous service during the conference. Bikes parked in front of the secondary entrances will be collected by our staff and brought back to the stations to make them accessible again as quickly as possible.

For more information please follow the links to the nextbike app on the right-hand side.

