The British Columbia Council for International Cooperation (BCCIC) Youth Delegation to COP 23, with Environnement Jeunesse, Youth Climate Lab, and the Canadian Youth Delegation are presenting their perspectives on the first week of COP 23 and the way forward towards the upcoming high-level segments and negotiations.

The delegates are youth from all over Canada. They are representing young Canadians in international climate negotiations and processes. Their shared common aim is to encourage the Canadian government and the Environment and Climate Change Canada negotiation team to adopt a more progressive agenda on climate action, which entails a more ambitious NDC. They also want to encourage more engagement with non-party stakeholders at home in Canada, and in UNFCCC processes. Moving forward faster, further, and together.
