Amal-Lee is a passionate advocate for sustainable development. In 2019 she was recognized by Apolitico as one of the top 100 influencers on climate policy. Her professional experience spans 20 years within the UK Government; multilateral development bank; think-tank and impact investing contexts. Professional achievements are underpinned by an academic background on policies and finance for decarbonizing the power sector within India and South Africa.

Amal-Lee is Managing Director and Head of Climate Change at CDC Group (soon to be British International Investment) where she is leading a climate strategy for aligning finance and investment to the goals of the Paris Agreement. Amal-Lee is also a senior advisor on climate finance to the UK's COP26 Presidency.

From 2015 - 2020, Amal-Lee was Chief of Climate Change at the Inter-American Development Bank, leading the Division in support of Latin America and Caribbean countries climate action.
