

Stefania Bracco

Short CV

Stefania Bracco (Stefania.Bracco@fao.org) is Consultant for the UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) in Rome. She is an Economist and an expert on sustainable investments in agrifood value chains. Since 2015, she has collaborated in several FAO projects and publications about the introduction of sustainable technologies in the agrifood sector, and the development of sustainable bioeconomy.

She holds a PhD in Economics from the University of Siena and a Master's degree in Development Economics from the University of Florence. She has international research experiences at the Columbia University in the City of New York and at the University of Reading, UK. In 2015-2016, she worked as Adjunct Professor of Quantitative Methods for Social Sciences at the University of Turin, Italy.

Her research interests and publications are in the field of energy and food economics and policy; bioeconomy; sustainability; trade and climate change.