THE CHARLES DARWIN RESCUE PLAN

Dear Supervisory board,

The Charles Darin Rescue Plan located in Berlin, Germany sees great danger in letting CDR fall in the hands of greedy people who are only interested in amassing cash at the cost of our planet. We ask two simple questions: who will be responsible when Megatons of buried CO<sub>2</sub> are suddenly released back to the surface of the Earth? Who will be out there to pay the price? Until such questions can be answered in great detail, extreme precaution should be practiced. Global warming started by industrial greed and will not end by greed. In order to impose extreme caution onto the currently speculative CDR effort, the Charles Darwin Rescue Plan proposes the following:

- 1. CDR should be an avenue for investing money and not making money. It should be defined as an avenue for "giving back" and not "taking away."
- 2. An international World CDR Bank should be founded in which money is invested in CDR and Planet Earth. The bank will have measures to control, monitor, diversify, and approve CDR activities by a nominated independent core of international experts. The bank will have to provide guarantees in the case of future accidents caused by irresponsive CDR. The bank will guarantee that all CDR profits are reinvested in the battle against global warming worldwide. The bank will be the sole authority allowed to trade in CO<sub>2</sub> credits.
- 3. We recommend not putting all eggs in one basket. The hasty zealous rush to bury CO<sub>2</sub> increases the risks in the future. We strongly advise that future risks are diversified by promoting CDR methods that are safer (and therefore more expensive).
- 4. Let us not repeat the same mistakes again.

We thank you for the opportunity to express our great concerns. With Kind regards,

Dr. Meir Sussman CEO The Charles Darwin Rescue Plan Helmholtz Str. 15 10587, Berlin Germany Tel: +49 015906790916
