

Submission from Comoros

▪ Relevant topics and themes to consider in designing the Forum

Gender-responsive finance is necessary and important because:

- Majority of women are affected by vulnerability of SIDS and LDCs following their exposure to extreme climatic events;
- The problem of displacement of women as climate refugees is there;
- Should help women farmers who are the main victims of the impacts of climate change;
- Climate resilience especially for women can increase with Gender-responsive finance.

▪ Information and case studies on gender-responsive finance

- Based on the latest climatic events that have shaken some countries recently (Comoros, Dubai, Tanzania, etc.) and study on the percentage of women affected;
- Take stock of the economic and financial aspects of these critical events, the highest percentage of which are women;
- Sensitize governments and other stakeholders such as the private sector on the creation of a permanent disaster emergency fund.

▪ Potential institutions and events to partner with the SCF Forum

- Involvement of national gender institutions and stakeholders involved in climate action
 - Work closely with the gender team of the UN national office;
 - Involve NGOs working in the field of gender and climate change;
 - Create a coordination commission for climate and gender actions, which can improve mobilizing funds to intervene on climate resilience;
 - Involve farmers' cooperatives which are very dynamic;
 - Awareness-raising with the support of concrete cases such as floods, gusts and other climate-related risks and disasters.
