BOGA Remarks – GCA High Level Event – 19/11/2026

Excellencies, Distinguished Participants

On behalf of Activation Group 4 under Axis 1 of the Action Agenda, I want to thank the COP30 and COP31 Presidencies, the High-Level Champions and the UNFCCC for convening us today, and for establishing a dedicated space within the Action Agenda for collaboration on the transition away from fossil fuels.

Momentum around the transition is evident here in Antalya, with the launch of the COP30 Presidency Roadmap, and with an increasing number of governments calling for accelerated action on clean electrification and the transition away from fossil fuels, as part of an urgent and comprehensive response to overshoot.

The Action Agenda is the engine behind that momentum – it's where the hard work of planning for the transition is taking place, and it's where the alliances, platforms and processes that can help drive implementation are cooperating.

Within Activation Group 4, there were 8 Plans for Accelerated Solutions submitted at COP30, covering all fossil fuels, from supply to demand. One year on, 7 of those 8 plans have reported progress, and one additional plan has been submitted. To give you a sense of what that progress looks like:

- The Climate & Clean Air Coalition (CCAC) and the Clean Air Task Force (CATF) expanded their Fossil Fuel Regulatory Programme (FFRP) from 3 to 8 country programmes, addressing around 8.5 million tonnes of methane emissions from coal, oil and gas in 2026.
- The Powering Past Coal Alliance (PPCA) published implementation tools and launched its coal transition partnerships, to help governments unlock the $23 billion that is already available in coal transition finance.
- At the Beyond Oil and Gas Alliance (BOGA), we launched three additional country programmes under the $20 million dollar BOGA fund, in collaboration with the NDC Partnership – and we advanced producer-consumer coordination in partnership with the European Commission.

And looking ahead, BOGA, PPCA and the NDC Partnership will work together, to mobilise further support for governments that want to start planning for a just, orderly, and equitable transition.

These are just a few of the many examples across Activation Group 4.

What is already clear across this package of progress, is that there are huge opportunities for cross-sector collaboration and coordination, and that we must rapidly replicate and scale those mechanisms that are shown to work, and that can accelerate implementation on the ground.

On this, we look forward to collaborating with all of you and strengthening our collective action ahead of COP32 and the second Global Stocktake.

Thank you.
