The Green Climate Fund (GCF) is the world's largest multilateral fund dedicated to helping developing countries address the climate crisis. Created in 2010, the GCF had its initial resource mobilization (IRM) in 2014, receiving $9.3 billion in pledges from 45 countries. It underwent its first replenishment (GCF-1) in 2019, garnering a further $10 billion in pledges from 32 countries. In 2023, its second replenishment (GCF-2) raised $10.6 billion in pledges from 33 countries.

The GCF has a number of innovative design features and is key to the grand bargain behind the Paris Agreement, that all countries need to do much more to tackle the climate crisis, but that the poorest countries—which did the least to cause the problem and are hit first and worst by its impacts—require support from the richest and highest-polluting countries.

To help assess the state of play of the GCF's replenishments, NRDC is tracking pledges to the fund and will provide updates as new announcements come in.
