

Let me start at the outset to thank the co-facilitators Monika and Miligarous for the excellent steering of the workshops and, I would like to congratulate the presenters for their excellent work and the UNFCCC secretariat for their dedication especially the Mr. Dirk and his staff who worked hard behind the scene to ensure that our virtual meetings is productive.

G77 and China is confident that the final out come of the secretariat will reflect all parties' views addressing their concerns and take into consideration the diverse nature of agriculture systems to insure food security.

co-facilitators and collogues, by concluding the item 2(f) we had almost reached the end of Koronivia road map, our eyes will be focused after on the CoP26 to deliver a report on the process that could contain an agreed way forward that reflects the interests of all parties. We believe that the upcoming meeting with the chairs of the subsidiary Bodies next year to lunch an exploratory talks among the Koronivia family would lead for more understanding among us, This would help parties to reach the least common dominator that pave the way towards implementation, so we can take it to real negotiations when we meet physically.

Chair;

Addressing Agriculture became an important matter in the question of Climate Change. The need of mechanisms to keep Koroniva or the issues related to agriculture going is becoming a priority for many countries. The shapes could differ but the aim is one (implementation). Whether we talk about entity or work programme ,we think that a system to ensure delivery of agriculture talks under the UNFCCC should be produced at the end of this road map.

G77 and China is open to engage in all form virtual / physical to reach our final destination , that we believe will be another departure point for a wide spectrum of opportunities for the whole globe.

Thank you colleagues for your attention
