1. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

Emergency health is an important public health issue because: * we have the opportunity to end preventable deaths among all women, children and adolescents and to greatly improve their health and well-being. * far too many women, infants and children worldwide still have little or no access to essential, quality health services and education, clean air and water, and adequate sanitation and nutrition.

Together with our partners UNFCCC, WHO , SYDF is improving the health and well-being of women, children and adolescents, in support of global Every Woman Every Child movement. In 2014, SYDF worked with the Pact Global Health Associations to globalize a policy statement on maternal mortality and Fistula. Adopted at the 50th General Assembly in Geneva, the "Reducing Maternal Mortality as a Human Right" resolution recommends national governments design vital health statistics systems to track high rates of maternal deaths and create health workforces equipped to serve developing countries. The policy also echoes the Global Strategy for Women's, Children's and Adolescents' Health call for increased financing and resilient health systems and is the first to come out of Work Group on Women, Children and Adolescents, which is being spearheaded by SYDF leadership as observer organization.
