

Shereen is a Foreign Affairs Officer at the U.S. State Department, where she leads the climate change adaptation team. Her work focuses on the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change negotiations and U.S. support for adaptation in developing countries. Shereen is co-chair of the UNFCCC Executive Committee on loss and damage and has worked on U.S. Government efforts to integrate climate resilience considerations into its international development programs and investments. Shereen has a Master of Environmental Science degree from Yale University's School of Forestry and Environmental Studies and a B.S. degree from Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service.